FIBRE OPTIC CABLING & LAYING

Fiberoptic cablinginvolvescareful planning,trenching,cableinstallation, splicing, testing, and restoration. The process begins with route planning to avoid obstacles, followed by digging trenches to lay and secure the cable. Cables are spliced using fusion splicing, and thorough testing ensures functionality. Once completed, trenches are backfilled, and the surface is restored. Fiber optic installation requires specialized equipment and trained professionals, ensuring a reliable communication network for years to come.
